

Newbury June 30 1845

My dear Sir,

Your letter was some time in reaching me, as I forgot in writing to you to give you my proper address, which is "Hobbs's Post Office Newbury".

I have since made out the enclosed list of scientific works which I wish to dispose of. The prices affixed are in most cases about half what they cost me, and frequently even less, and I believe as low as the same works could be purchased anywhere. If they could be sold in one lot I might make some reduction on that account. They are in the best order, and generally as perfect as they come from the bookstore, and most of them in good and even costly bindings, which I have scarcely taken into account in estimating the price. Some of the more valuable are now at Bantlett & Wolford's, bookseller, Astor House, where they can be seen at any time.

If you would like to have a Toreya, I can give you a large plant of it, if you will direct me how to send it.

Yours very truly

J. Cooper
